The design studio behind previous well-known titles including Missing: Since January and The Experiment, Lexis Numérique, will be exhibiting three upcoming downloadable titles for the PlayStation®Network – Red Johnson's Chronicles and AMY - as well as the children's title Learning With the PooYoos. ### Red Johnson's Chronicles

Available for PSN in May, Red Johnson's Chronicles is an action adventure/puzzle game that is played out similarly to a television crime show – sort of like 'Professor Layton meets CSI.' In the game, players take on the role of Red Johnson, a private investigator on the streets whose crime rate is skyrocketing. They must use clues, solve puzzles and question witnesses to investigate a murder, all while staying out of danger's way.

AMY

Releasing for PSN in June, AMY is a survival horror/action adventure game, where players must protect, and escort the strange 8-year-old autistic title character as they try to get her out of a city overrun with wild creatures and enemies. The story follows Amy and Lana (who players control), a woman who is trying to protect and save her in the disease-ridden town. They must work together to fight or flee from the aberrations, demons, and the military, in the hope of saving not only each other, but also the future of humanity itself.

Learning With the PooYoos

Learning with the PooYoos is the first video game designed for younger players (3-6-years-old) on the PlayStation®3 console and is available for download. The PooYoos, a merry band of adorable baby animals, teach children the basics of reading through fun and fanciful educational adventures. This early-learning game will introduce colors, music and forms to young players. During the game, players help the PooYoos answer questions, copy the animals' dance moves and play mini-games in order to learn numbers, letters, shapes, colors and more.

Assets are now available for Red Johnson's Chronicles and AMY, and if you'd like to request assets please contact us.
